Youth Completes Dangerous 35-Mile Trip in Iron Lung

LANCASTER, Pa.—Thomas Fasnacht, 17, completed the most dangerous journey of his life and that could have cost him his life if anything had gone wrong.

The frail boy, so stricken by infantile paralysis that he can live only in an iron lung, was moved 35 miles from Lancaster General Hospital to Harrisburg's Polyclinic Hospital in a moving van using a big iron lung powered by portable power plants. He could not be moved in a portable lung because he would not live more than a few minutes in one.

But every precaution was taken in case the portable power units should fail during the journey.

The Pennsylvania Power & Light Company was called in and they canvassed the route and found a number of poles along the way which would support the portable units.

As a further precaution the light company canvassed the route and found a number of poles along the way which would support the portable units.

Navy Works on High-Speed, Long-Diving Submarine

WASHINGTON—The navy reported recently it is working on a new type submarine that would be a "true submarine" in that it could submerge indefinitely.

One navy official said it was "conceivable" that the new underwater craft would do 20 knots submerged and 20 knots on the surface. Existing submarines can do only about 12 to 13 knots submerged.

The officer said the Germans experimented with the new type submarine, and that the British now have developed one and this country is working on one. He also indicated that the high-speed submarine was not too long in the future.

Italians Deluge Policemen With Gifts of Cakes, Wine

ROME, Italy—Tons of cakes and thousands of gallons of wine were stacked in the center of Italy's main metropolitan intersections recently to celebrate the feast of the Epiphany. It's an annual ritual in the nation's big cities.

Police vehicles lined the streets gathering up the gifts. At the close of the day the offerings were distributed among all members of the force.

Atomic Bomb Would Disappoint Public If Put on Display

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The public is going to be disappointed if and when the atomic bomb is put on display, especially to those who have enjoyed visions of a fantastic look of war.

The atomic energy commission chairman, Gordon Dean, is of the opinion that the time is coming when a model can be put on exhibition without giving away important secrets.

Dean said thousands of persons in the armed forces and atomic plants already know the bomb looks like. And while he didn't say so, it is pretty obvious the Russians know, too, since they're making their own bombs.

The external appearance of the bomb itself is apparently not secret. But enough information has been made public for the curious-minded to piece together a fairly good mental picture of the super-bomb.

There is little doubt that the bomb is big—even in comparison to the huge blockbusters of World War II. The B-29 superfortress, which is no small airplane by any standards, had to be modified to carry the bomb.

Only a tiny fraction of the huge mass that makes up a bomb is atomic explosive. Scientific guesswork has placed the amount at between 20 and 60 pounds, with 30 pounds a popular stab in the dark.

What makes the bomb so big is that the explosive core has to be divided into two or more spherical pieces, which must be kept reasonably far apart until the instant of firing.

State police equipped with walkie-talkies, led the way and doctors and nurses kept Thomas company.

The boy, by the way, has developed into a backward-reading fellow. In his iron lung he can watch television through a mirror. But the printing is all backward. By now, he is as good as he used to be read forward.

Melvin Stroud has returned from Huntsville where he has been employed in a government ordnance plant. He will have charge of construction of a large duplex apartment on Smith Avenue for Messrs. W. W. Hunt and Otto Rowe, who recently purchased the old Bailey home from Ray Bailey. The house will be torn down to make room for a modern apartment building. Work will be started in the near future.

The large apartment house being constructed by Dave Vaughan on the lot to the rear of his home is nearing completion. It contains four large apartments and is completely modern.

Under Mr. Dorsey's arrangement, the truck element consists of the usual motor and cab from which there projects rearward a frame in the form of a pair of sills that are yieldably supported, means of leaf springs, upon the rear-wheel axle.

The tandem or conversion member comprise a pair of properly braced, longitudinally extending bars that straddle the truck frame and are supported at their rear ends by a pair of round-engaging wheels. The forward portion of the tandem member is disposed over the truck frame; and the two units are connected to each other by special bearing structures.

In other words, Mr. Dorsey's design is such that the conversion unit may be adjusted lengthwise with respect to the truck frame in order to permit any reasonable proportioning of a load between their axles.

Moreover, the connection between them is flexible to an extent that, when moving over uneven ground, they rock independently of each other, thereby eliminating all of the stresses incident to a rigidly mounted tandem element.

Mr. and Mrs. Math McCollough have returned from a six-week stay at their citrus farm in Lake County, Fla. Mr. McCollough said Lake County has 1800 lakes large enough to have names, besides many other little ones. He said that during the recent cold spell when great damage was done in many sections of the state, a vapor rising from the lakes protected the crops and no appreciable damage was done in the county.

Indications point to a good citrus crop in that section he said.

It seems that the record-breaking cold weather this winter had less effect on peach trees than on pears. Usually the trees in this section bloom about the same time, but the few days of warm weather recently brought peach trees out in full blossom, while pear trees will not bloom for some time, as the buds are just starting.

For the past several years warm weather in January and February has caused fruit trees in this section to bloom early. In February only to be killed later in the season. It is hoped the cold weather this winter has retarded the blossoms sufficiently to assure a good fruit crop. Ed Lee, recognized as an authority on things horticultural, said his plum trees are full of blossoms and he thinks they will make a good crop for the first time in several years.

I had a pleasant visit Sunday afternoon with long-time friend, John Payne, at his home in the western outskirts of Elba. He has been confined to his home for more than two years, suffering from a serious heart ailment. He said he was feeling better and is able to be up and about and as long as he obeys doctor's orders he feels pretty good. He was formerly chief of police and afterward was employed at the power plant until his health failed.

Claude E. Dorsey Jr. Awarded Patent on Trailer Attachment

On January 30 the United States Patent Office granted patent number 2,389,733 on a Motor Vehicle with Tandem Conversion Attachment to Claude E. Dorsey Jr. of Elba.

This invention pertains to a novel construction of motor vehicle that has a detachable tandem conversion unit for increasing the load capacity of the vehicle. As particularly feature of its design, means are provided for proportioning the carried load between the parts of the assembly; and provision is made for relieving the truck frame of the torsional or twisting strains to which it is normally subjected when employed with a conventional tandem unit.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE Under Mr. Dorsey's arrangement, the truck element consists of the usual motor and cab from which there projects rearward a frame in the form of a pair of sills that are yieldably supported, means of leaf springs, upon the rear-wheel axle.

The tandem or conversion member comprise a pair of properly braced, longitudinally extending bars that straddle the truck frame and are supported at their rear ends by a

CHAPTER I—Stella Moore, marquise, has been told to tell her husband, Mr. Evans, that she is not going to have a special night nurse. And I'm a light sleeper. If she called or made a sound of any kind, I'm sure I would have awakened.

"I slept right through until eight o'clock. When I went to look at her, I found a little consciousness-stricken myself. But she wasn't asleep."

She stopped, swallowed, blinking a little. "I can't think I'm to blame."

"We're not blaming you, Carol."

Edward assured her hastily. His hands tied and untied the cord of his damask robe.

"I don't want to look at her. She wouldn't have liked it—like looking at her when she was helpless. She was always independent." He cleared his throat. "She asked so little, poor Mother."

"But what she did ask, she had to have." Faye declared. She displayed no grief, only a sort of futile anger. Yet as she looked at the pain-filled face of her own child, she was a woman again.

She was always independent. He cleared his throat. "She asked so little, poor Mother."

Dream House Is Moved 1,200 Miles by Pair

NEWPORT NEWS, Va.—Houses are difficult to find these days, especially dream houses. A Vermont man and his wife knew this and a result moved their house some 1,200 miles.

Bryon White and his wife built their Vermont home themselves, lovingly adding each new gadget and labor saving device. When the time came for them to move to Virginia they decided they wouldn't leave it.

Through half a dozen states, up hills, across forests, down slippery and labor saving device. When the time came for them to move to Virginia they decided they wouldn't leave it.

Sorely tried by fire, breakdowns, blizzards and vigilant policemen, they never gave up. After all, how could they abandon 14,000 pounds of house.

Altogether, with detours, they towed the house 1,200 miles.

Six weeks after the hazardous journey started, the house is set among a grove of evergreens. Its picture windows look out on rolling grass and gardens. Its winding driveway leads to the garage.

They have built at the rear of the much traveled, modernistic home, an electronics engineer and former assistant professor at the University of Vermont, was just finishing up his house on university property when he took a job in Newport News with an electronics manufacturing concern.

The Whites had not overlooked the possibility that they might have to move their home when they planned it. The structure was built in the form of a T with the living room the T's crossbar. They built the living room so that by using hinges it could be folded up no wider than the T's crossbar.

They had also used hardwood plywood—not yet on the home builders' market—and aluminum screws instead of nails. This made for lightness.

Trip a Nightmare

When they hit the road for Virginia, the home, set on a specially made trailer, was 33 feet long, eight feet wide and 11½ feet high.

But if the house was a dream, the trip was a nightmare. They had to get permits from the states they planned to drive through. They had to avoid overpasses and some bridges. They had to write ahead to arrange for towns in some places.

They spent six or seven days on the trip. Each time one blew out a tire, it ripped itself to pieces under the weight of the house.

Bear Mountain in New York never will be forgotten by the Whites. Almost the crest of the long, high hill their overhauled motor burst into flame. When they got the fire out the crankcase oil was a chocolate brown from the heat.

Now that the house is set up again and livable, some of the terrors of the trip seem humorous to the Whites. But they're certain of one thing, never again.

The words "Liberty National is Growing" graphically depict a story of outstanding progress during the year 1950. These words appear on the sign adjacent to our building in Birmingham where a ten-story addition is now being made to the present ten-story Home Office Building. The total space in the Home Office Building is being tripled which is made necessary by the fact that the loyal and energetic efforts of our more than 1,000 field representatives have gained the respect and admiration of the holders of more than 2,400,000 policies now outstanding. The Company operates in eight states and has policyholders residing in every state of the nation. The increase in force and assets during 1950 established new all-time high records. For this record, we are extremely grateful to those whom we have the privilege of serving.

Liberty National Insurance Hangs Up New Sales Records

Liberty National Life Insurance Company hung up new records last year.

President Frank P. Sanford said the annual stockholders meeting today, said insurance in force increased $67,709.107 in 1950 the biggest increase ever made by the company in any year. Insurance in force now totals $624,991.474.

Total resources increased $11,767,007.98, a record, bringing total resources to $65,879,250.84.

Mr. Sanford said a 10-story addition to the present home office building is now under construction. This will triple space in the home office building. The expansion was made necessary by the company's rapid growth.

The company continues to show rapid strides in all fields, which not only reflects confidence and esteem in which the company is held by the insurance-buying public but also testifies to the efficiency and loyalty of its more than 1,350 employees, Mr. Sanford said.

The company has in effect a profit sharing plan and retirement plan, and under them, stock, when it is available, is purchased for the account of the agents and employees. Both the management and the employees look forward to the time when the company will largely be owned by those who work for it.

O. T. Williams is the local representative for Liberty National Insurance.

Meat, Rice 'n' Gravy—Thrifty, Good

The whole family will enjoy these old-fashioned meat cakes with rice 'n' gravy. It's a dish which happily combines good food and economy.

Always on the alert for thrifty main dishes, the budget-wise woman will welcome this one—Meat Cakes with Rice and Gravy. It combines old-fashioned goodness with economy.

Old Fashioned Meat Cakes with Rice and Gravy
4 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Dash of pepper
1/2 cup dry bread crumbs
1/2 cup milk
1 pound ground beef
3 tablespoons fat
4 tablespoons flour
1 1/2 cups water
2 teaspoons meat paste
1/2 cup hot water
1 package (1 1/2 cups) pre-cooked rice
1 1/2 cups water
1/2 teaspoon salt

Combine onion, egg, salt, Worcestershire sauce, pepper, bread crumbs, and milk. Let stand 5 minutes. Add beef and mix lightly. Form into 10 small cakes. Melt fat in skillet. Add meat cakes and brown lightly on both sides.

Meanwhile, combine rice, 1 1/2 cups water, and 1/2 teaspoon salt in saucepan. Mix just until all rice is moistened. Bring quickly to a boil over high heat, uncovered, fluffing rice gently once or twice with a fork. (Do not stir.) Cover and remove from heat. Let stand 10 minutes.

When meat cakes are browned remove from skillet and keep hot. Add flour to fat remaining in skillet, blending well. Add 1 1/2 cups water and gradually, stirring constantly. Dissolve meat paste in hot water and add to mixture in skillet. Bring to a boil.

Arrange rice on platter. Place meat cakes around rice and top with part of the gravy. Serve with remaining gravy. Makes 5 servings.
